Q: Tag request: "tie" "Tie" is a relatively common phrase to be used for sports where a game is decided by a very small margin. Let me give a few examples Tie-breaker Game tied, 3-3. Guess who's going to win the game? I'd like to suggest "tie" as a tag for questions that involve a tie in a sports match or game. A: sports.se has a tag related-sports, and "tie" is already suggested as a synonym to these. Q: Retrieving data from json and append in custom field. Codeigniter I want to retrieve data and append the data in custom field. when I call the method by passing "92.7.96.233", it returns json as expected. But when I pass it as "92.7.96.233/signal/" it returns a blank page and does not return anything. Here is my code: Controller function get_cameras() { $this->load->model('cameras_m'); if($_POST) { $data = $this->cameras_m->get_cameras($_POST['ip']); $json = json_encode($data); $this->load->view('index',$json); } } Model public function get_cameras($ip) { $this->db->select('*'); $this->c9d1549cdd

Gameplay...Time course of neurovascular coupling to sound in the ipsilateral and contralateral cochlea of chinchilla after unilateral cochlear ablation. Cochlear ablation of one ear in awake animals elicits temporary increases in spontaneous activity and ipsilateral cochlear blood flow (ICBF) lasting about 60 days. This study was designed to determine whether ipsilateral ICBF to normal sound levels correlated with increases in the spike rate in response to ipsilateral sound presented at the same or increased rates. Chinchillas were anesthetized (n = 15) and allowed to recover after electrolytic trauma (n = 11) or right unilateral cochlear ablation (n = 7). The stimulus consisted of a pure tone at 50 dB SPL. Ipsilateral ICBF and spike rate were measured concurrently over time in unanesthetized animals using LDI techniques. Ipsilateral ICBF measures were elevated in both groups of operated animals compared to unoperated controls (electrolytic trauma, 8.5+/-3.3 ml/min; unoperated, 1.7+/-0.7 ml/min). Ipsilateral ICBF responses were stable for 45 min and declined to background levels within 60 min. The postoperative spike rate in response to ipsilateral sound was significantly elevated compared to the postoperative control value for up to 30 min after surgery (electrolytic trauma: 7.8+/-3.6 spikes/s, mean+/-SEM; surgery: 30.2+
