Description Sky Racket, also known as Sky Racket Blast or Racket is a side-scrolling platform game for the Nintendo Entertainment System. It was published in North America by Batsōsen, and in Japan by Jaleco. It is not to be confused with the 3D platformer Sky Racket. Story The story of Sky Racket follows the hero Sky (an obvious reference to Mario), as he travels through dangerous space. Sky has just recently been drafted to a new mission: to collect the Diamonds of the Celestial King, and return them to the Celestial King. Sky's ship's main cargo hold is filled with treasure: one must be collected before the mission is over.

Gameplay Sky Racket: Sky Racket plays like a typical side scrolling game, with all of the trappings of the genre: you run, jump and shoot enemies with your paddle. There are four types of "blocks" in the game: Light, Medium and Heavy Blocks; and also a new type: Emergence Blocks. Light and Heavy Blocks knock the player back if they touch them; Emergence Blocks knock the player back if they touch them and shake the platform. If an Emergence Block is hit at the right moment, it will shake the entire platform that is shaking. When an Emergence Block appears and an enemy is near, the block will suddenly disappear, and explode outward, crumbling the platform. When an Emergence Block is hit in the right moment, it will fall from the sky, while another emerges above the player, which will explode and crumble the platform. You can also jump off the sides of the screen, and propel yourself through the air, or simply fall to the end of the screen.

Just like with the famous Flash games, these days a lot of people will start playing with websites using flash

(YouTube, Vimeo, etc.) because of the modern browsers. Because of this, Adobe started an HTML5 videogame maker. This would let the user create games with nearly all html5 coding skills, and because there are no flash players required for this project, it can run on almost any browser with the help of a so-called "app-framework". The other big advantage is that one can easily create multiple games at once, so one can create multiple browser games quickly and flexibly. The game engine is based on the game maker scene developed by Lee Neuware, Matthias Stigl and Daniel Schuller. This makes it very easy to get started. The result is a simple to use and quick game creation tool. What's new in First Class Trouble New Years Pack:

by Elaine Daichman It is a beautiful summer night, with a full moon casting a silvery luminescence on the lagoon. Seagulls screech overhead, and the lights are showing up in a way which makes the night look like day. It's a real stars and moon-lit night, the kind of night that makes us feel as if we're on another planet. And whose fault is that? As usual, it's Nittapur's. His family owns the lake. The people who live here live in resentment of their overlord Nittapur, the lord of this billionaire's playground. It doesn't matter whether anyone actually owns or can claim to own Nittapur or the entire lake. The point is that it is Nittapur and his family who own and control the lake, and it is their power that the people resent and fear. All over India, children are going to bed when the sun goes down. But we here in Nittapur stay out as long as we want. Nights like this one, with the full moon, the lights showing up in such a spectacular way, are the rarest of things, and we kids appreciate them all the more. This night is truly magical, magical for us in ways it can't be to our parents or our older siblings. When the night is perfect like tonight, a kid's world turns into something more than a kid's world. Any night in the summer is like this for us, though usually it's a long time before a near-perfect night like the one we're having right now occurs, thanks to seasonal and other vagaries. Before tonight, our nights usually got their casting from a single bright-white street lamp towering on one side of the lake, casting just enough light to reveal the dark shape of the water and the lighting of the beachfront hotels at the other edge of the lake, getting us to chase each other and a pile of colored beachballs. Now, though, that one lamp is just one out of many and the lights that it casts are a thousand times as bright. We're almost in an entirely different night world. Half of the kids in our neighborhood are out tonight. A few of their parents put them out, of course, but others do it themselves. Their parents are counting on us, you
