Step 2: Download the library that will convert the HTTP GET/POST requests made through the Apache-Tomcat connector to IIS's GET/POST requests. (Suggested from a comment on this blog post: <https://www.cgsecurity.org/blog/2012/04/01/blocking-the-ajp-port-in-sslsleuthkit>) C:> catalina start C:> svc.bat Step 2: Download the smbmap.dll library. The library has no installer. The library is self-contained. On Unix systems the common directory for shared libraries is /lib. On Windows systems it is common to place shared libraries in the share directory, and the system directory when no share is available. We will assume that the library is in the system directory. > C:> netsh /? C:> cd. Step 3: Unzip the libraries we downloaded. To download and install libraries we need to execute a command like this: > C:> > [Y | N | D | H | M | Z | L | S | T] :> C: > > [Y | N | D | H | M | Z | L | S | T] : Y> C: Step 4: Install the libraries we downloaded. Installing the libraries on Windows is done via a command line like this: JkShmGetShares JkRequestLog /var/log/httpd_ajp13.log JkResponseBuffer size 65536 JkOptions timeout:15 ajp13 download Enable the mod_jk module with the following line in the configuration file

this issue told us to change the file format of mod_jk-3.0.4-src.zip to mod_jk.zip. because the file mod_jk-3.zip cannot be changed automatically, we made a script to do this by himself. you can download and run this script to make mod_jk. this issue provides one important suggestion for using the mod_jk-3. suggests that, we should delete the file mod_jk-3.jar. remember this file because we need it to make this work! *wildfly servers do not need to modify worker.properties nor restart service to allow remote access. wildfly already accesses httpd via ajp13 if it was configured to be so. you only need to modify tomcat to allow remote access. * in java ee 7, web.xml (tomcat) does not allow for ajp13. if you have java ee 7, you cannot use ajp13 directly and have it work like the other protocols. for java ee 7, you need to deploy a proxy to provide such functionality. * for a quick test, you could use the catalina.sh script found in tomcat's bin directory to create a listener within a few seconds. this test will tell you if the listener is running on port 8009 as defined in worker.properties. here is the whole world. it was an amusement park with a pirate ship inside. in the middle of the pirate's lagoon, stands a white castle. i had no idea what to do next. ah, i remembered i had my messages left in the white castle. i had no choice. for a bold move, i started to go to the white castle. yes, the castle was a little far to go. and the guard was over there.. but that was good enough. the guard was oblivious. (it was too much to ask him to take a jump, right?) 5ec8ef588b
